Changi Airport Group and Munich Airport seal cooperation pact

SINGAPORE, 8 November 2010 – Changi Airport Group (CAG) has signed a cooperation agreement with Munich Airport. The pact, finalised at the 20th ACI World General Assembly, the annual conference of Airports Council International, will intensify the collaboration of these two major air transportation hubs. With this agreement, Mr Lee Seow Hiang, CEO of CAG and Dr Michael Kerkloh, the Management Board spokesman and CEO of Munich Airport, reaffirmed their plans for systematic expansion of the contacts between the two airports. The goal of the cooperation is to learn from one another and continue improving processes for customers by exchanging experiences on a regular basis.

Among the provisions of the agreement is a management exchange program to allow managers of the airports to see the processes and structures of the partner airport for themselves. The two airport heads also agreed to meet at least once a year in the future to assess progress and coordinate further project stages.

Changi Airport was voted the world's best airport in a global passenger survey conducted by Skytrax, the renowned London-based aviation research institute. In the same survey Munich Airport won the title of Europe's best airport.

This new partnership is particularly important in view of the above-average increases in traffic between Singapore and Europe: It presents both airports with an opportunity to gain more detailed insights into each other's growth markets.

Singapore and Munich are connected by 28 weekly flights operated by Lufthansa and Singapore Airlines.
